Plastic Surgery

There is a new trend in plastic surgery, and Dr. Scott Miller is at the forefront. "The key is limited incisions and natural results," explains Dr. Miller. By doing more through smaller incisions and supporting the deep layer rather pulling on the skin, Dr. Miller gets more natural, longer-lasting results that are less detectable. Procedures such as the internal browpexy cause less bruising and swelling and require less recovery than more extensive procedures.

Dr. Miller went beyond the standard training to do a fellowship with a world-renowned facial plastic surgeon. This further refined and focused his artistic nature and advanced his results. He has operated at live seminars to demonstrate techniques to other plastic surgeons, is a textbook author on facial rejuvenation and has been a speaker at national aesthetic meetings. Dr. Miller is often consulted by the media regarding plastic surgery. He is a member of an exclusive society of plastic surgeons, which meets annually to expand and refine techniques.

The patient is always the top priority at Miller Cosmetic Surgery Center. Dr. Miller believes that "the most important thing is to treat every patient like a family member." He approaches the patient as a whole person and works with him or her to discover what surgery will and will not achieve.

Dr. Scott Miller believes his role is not to create beauty but to reveal that beauty we carry with us.
